Dear Dr. Hariri,

Thank you for running the peer-review process for manuscript # SO-19-3132 entitled "The Relationship Between School Principals' Paternalistic Leadership and Teachers' Job Burnout: An Action Research*" for SAGE Open.

If your decision was not final (Accept or Reject) and you have asked the author(s) for revisions then we will contact you again as soon as the revised manuscript has been returned. If you are unable to continue in the Article Editor role for the revision please let us know as soon as possible. Thank you.

In recognition of your continued support, SAGE is pleased to offer you 60 days complimentary online access to all journals published by SAGE. Register at www.uk.sagepub.com/reviewersaccess to activate access to content from all journals. To choose your free book, go to the SAGE website (<http://www.sagepublications.com/>), and browse. Then please fill out your delivery address and the required book data on the attached order form and return it to this e-mail address. Please note that reference texts and the Quantitative Applications in the Social Sciences (QASS) books are not eligible.

On behalf of SAGE, I appreciate the voluntary contribution you have given to SAGE Open. If you have feedback for the Editorial Office and would like to complete a short, one-page survey to help us improve our process please click the link below:

Dear SAGE Open Editorial Office,

Thank you for having invited me to serve role as the Article Editor for manuscript # SO-19-3132 entitled "The Relationship Between School Principals' Paternalistic Leadership and Teachers' Job Burnout: An Action Research*" for SAGE Open.

In the case that the authors have completed the revisions and the revised manuscript has been returned, I would be unable to continue in the Article Editor role for the revision due to many duties this semester from my uni.

Again, thank you very much.

Regards,
Hasan Hariri
