GENERAL INFORMATION

A. Introduction

Since it was first discovered in Wuhan, China, in late 2019 and designated by the World Health Organization (WHO) as a pandemic on March 11, 2020, COVID-19 has profoundly impacted people's lives. The COVID-19 pandemic that hit almost all countries globally has caused a health crisis that led to stagnation to the decline of the global economy due to social restrictions in the community.

Social restrictions (mobility) of the community due to COVID-19 have encouraged changes in consumption behavior. Business processes that are usually done offline are now shifting to online; this is seen from the growth of online shopping transactions that increased drastically during the pandemic.

This change in consumption patterns should undoubtedly be seen as an opportunity. Business actors must utilize this opportunity to explore and exploit market opportunities to improve innovation capabilities through the use of technology.

Therefore, technology becomes the business enabler for maintaining and increasing business sustainability across the nations. To be sustained in their field, businesses have to enhance their technological capability to adapt to the turbulence of the business environment caused by COVID-19. This change stimulates organizations to begin and even flourishing digital transformation in their businesses. The digital technologies were used to create new — or modify existing — business processes, culture, and customer experiences to meet changing business and market requirements. The digital transformation transcends traditional activities, including sales, finance, accounting, marketing, and customer service. Many organizations such as government and public institutions, private and services industries use the digital transformation. It has a significant influence in managing businesses and engaging with customers using digital technology. By applying it, the organization's business performance is expected to increase.

Therefore, the Faculty of Economics & Business Universitas Lampung (FEB-UNILA), in collaboration with Magister Manajemen Teknologi Universitas Multimedia Nusantara (MMT-UMN) and also Universitas Malahayati and Universitas Bhayangkara Raya Jaya, will conduct the E-International Conference, The 4th International Conference of Economics, Business & Entrepreneurship (ICEBE). The event aims to explore the role of technological innovation in business strategy during the pandemic.
