REVIEWER'S COMMENTS

Title of the article reviewed:

Saving Mangrove Forest Extinction in Urban Areas: Will Government Interventions Help?

Summary

This article examines the planning and management of endangered and limited urban mangrove forests in Indonesia. It necessitates practical intervention in public policy planning and implementation public policy at the street level. The findings of this article show that the government prioritizes the development of mangroves as tourism through ecotourism and Edu tourism program interventions, planting mangrove varieties, institutional networking, and the formation and strengthening of community-level tourism institutions, even though the scale of this intervention is insufficient. The practical implication of this article is that the government at a more strategic level needs to create a new strategic plan that integrates saving and developing mangroves to achieve these two goals.

Major Issues

The main problem of this article is that the source of the data is not clear. Only accurate and credible sources of information can make the argument stronger and more credible. The authenticity of the data also reflects the author's rigorous attitude towards this article. The logic of the article also requires the truthfulness of the data. Sexual support.

Abstract:

- The abstract does not propose the research method of this article, nor does it elaborate on the research purpose of this article.
- The language in the abstract should be condensed, and there are a lot of sentences in the introduction in the abstract, which should not appear in the abstract.

Key words:

- Community support cannot be used as a keyword. Generally, there are 3 to 5 keywords. Words or phrases that can cover the main content of the article should be used.

Introduction:

- The introduction does not raise the specific research questions of this article, which leads to the unclear logic and unclear goals of this article.

- The format of the citation in the introduction is wrong, for example, if the citation is marked with 16, the superscript should be used
 - The introduction should explain the research method of this article, but it is not mentioned in the introduction of this article.

Theoretical Review:

- The heading of this chapter is spelled incorrectly and should be theoretical, not theoretical.
- This chapter is a theoretical review, it should not appear here, it should be in the introduction, or the name should be changed to a literature review.

Methods:

- This chapter introduces the research method of this article. This article uses the stereotyped research method, but the reasons for choosing this method are not introduced in detail. The inquiry process of the research method should be given.

Results and Discussion:

- This chapter analyzes and discusses the research results. In the analysis process, the language is not rigorous, the logic is not clear, and the data source is not clear, which leads to the reduction of the credibility of the article. The data source can be accurately expressed to make the full text argument strong.
- When discussing the results of the research, the opinions are not concentrated, the arguments are inconsistent, and the whole is relatively scattered.

Conclusions:

- The conclusion of the article gives a summary of five major points and summarizes the full text, but the overall indentation format is wrong. During the summary process, the language is rigorous and the logic is clear. It answers the question raised by the title: Saving mangroves in urban areas from extinction: Government intervention will help. NS? However, there is no explanation for the practical application of the results of this study, and it can be added to the conclusion.

Others:

The following minor issues should be looked into by the author:

- There are errors with the labeling of the cited documents in the whole article, for example, there are many labeling errors in the literature review.
- The first line of individual paragraphs is indented and formatted incorrectly, such as an error in the conclusion of the last paragraph.
- The content of the article is arranged and put together, the logic is not strong, and the content is not clear.
- The argumentation logic of the whole article is not rigorous enough, so we should focus on the argumentation logic of the article.

General Comments

Finally, I recommend the author to make major revisions.
