Dear Editor,

We have the pleasure of sending you a manuscript entitled "How Is a Foreign Language Pronounced? A Case Study of Indonesian as a Foreign Language among Speakers of other Languages" to be considered for publication as a research article in your prestigious journal. We confirm that this manuscript has not been published elsewhere and is not under consideration by another journal.

The study aims to ascertain the vowels and consonants of the Indonesian language that were incorrectly and correctly pronounced by a Lao man and a Japanese woman. This study is descriptive and qualitative in nature. Following data collection via audio recording, the data were analysed using a contrastive analysis. The study's findings indicate that certain speech sounds are both mispronounced and well-pronounced.

This article has been submitted with full responsibility, following the due ethical procedure, and there is no duplicate publication, fraud, plagiarism, or concerns about animal or human experimentation.

We are looking forward to hearing your decision at your earliest convenience.

Warm regards,
Mulyanto Widodo, Gede Eka Putrawan, Ryzal Perdana

About the revised paper:

Grammatical errors/incorrect usages/spelling errors are found in the paper.

For example:

they are unfamiliar with producing them and prefers to substitute the closest known counterpart.

such as in the words "club" pronounced /kulüp/, "sport" pronounced /sıpor/, "studio" pronounced /sutudiyο/, and "crisis" pronounced /kırız/ (Khalizadeh, 2014).

Please check the paper again, word by word, sentence by sentence!

Dear Editor,

Thank you for your email and advice, and I am sorry for the tardiness of this response.

It has been more than three days since your last email was sent, I just read your reply. I apologize for the inconvenience. I was away from the city for some reason.

Is there still a chance that my manuscript could be published in January via your fast-track publication? I will promptly make the payment (US$825).

I hope you would understand and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

With kind regards,
